Peter Theron is a mathematics, statistics, and computer science instructor. He has a BA in statistics from Princeton University and a PhD in mathematics from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He has taught at UW-Madison, UW-Whitewater, and Beloit College. In the private sector he has created commercial software and delivered continuing education to professional computer programmers. In 2008 he was the Republican candidate in Wisconsin's Second Congressional District.

“The federal government is spending money we do not have, incurring debts we cannot repay, and making promises we cannot keep. For too long the liberal mantra has been tax and spend. Since moving to Madison in 1980, I have dealt with liberals in the classroom, on campus committees, and in my community. This background gives me the backbone to confront Washington's overspending and overreaching. I am the best choice to represent Wisconsin's Second District.” Peter Theron.
